

Public Presentation – Terrace Campus

October 19th, 2016 12:00 pm – 1:00 pm

This session will also be available via livestream: <http://original.livestream.com/unbcnorthwest>

When Salmon Ate Moose: Exploring the Reasons for the Absence of Moose in Northwestern North America, 1793-1900

Presenter: Ted Binnema

Professor of History, University of Northern British Columbia

Why were moose entirely absent in northwestern British Columbia until the early 20th century? How and why did moose expand their range into the region so quickly thereafter? This talk will address those questions by exploring the complex environmental changes that the region underwent over the last few centuries.

