

Contact Information

If you are interested in participating in an interview discussion regarding your experiences of marriage and migration, or have any questions or concerns about this project, please contact:

Primary Investigator :

Courtney LeBourdais,

Master of Arts Candidate

University of Northern British Columbia

Phone: (250) 960-5952

Email: cwood0@unbc.ca

Thesis Supervisor :

Catherine Nolin,

Associate Professor, Geography Program

University of Northern British Columbia

Phone: (250) 960-5875

Email: nolin@unbc.ca

Notes: _____

Marriage Migration in Northern British Columbia:

Place and Identity
among Foreign Brides

Marriage Migration in Northern British Columbia: Place and Identity among Foreign Brides

Purpose of Study

In recent years, a growing number of women have (im)migrated to northern British Columbia as the result of marriage migration.

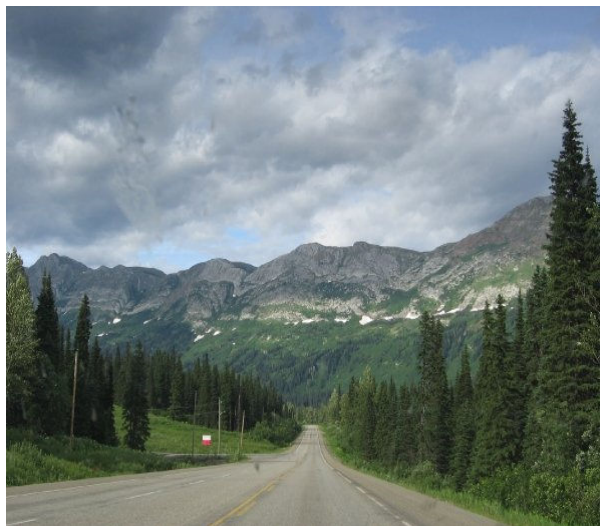

In recognizing that this type of migration is often based on numerous and diverse reasons, my thesis research seeks to gather a better understanding of individual experiences of marriage migration.

Additionally, I am interested in the settlement and integration experiences of recent marriage migrants, to better understand how this type of migration may effect an individual's sense of place and identity.

Communities

I am hoping to speak with women who have recently (im)migrated to northern British Columbia, as marriage migrants, in the following communities:

- ▣ Prince George
- ▣ Fort St. John
- ▣ Dawson Creek

Timeline

I will be conducting interviews with women throughout northern British Columbia to better understand their experiences of marriage and migration.

I will be conducting interviews and focus groups in Prince George in:

- ▣ June and August 2009

And in Fort St. John and Dawson Creek in:

- ▣ June and July 2009

●●● My schedule is flexible and I can arrange to meet individuals at different times if the above dates do not work. Also, I can arrange to have phone conversations if participants do not want to meet face to face.