A Critical Balance:

Land Use Conflicts and West Moberly First Nations

In the Treaty-8 Territory of BC the First Nations are faced with massive resource development challenges from forestry, oil and gas, large scale hydroelectric facilities, pipelines, and windfarms, while struggling to keep the balance between development, economic and business opportunities, the protection of the Treaty rights and self preservation of their community.

Chief Willson will address the challenges his community faces and some of the work that they are doing to preserve land, culture and community.
