Breaking Ground Research: The Prince George Northern Sustainable Landscape Initiative

The Prince George Northern Sustainable Landscape Initiative is a community based collaborative research project between UNBC and the City of Prince George, and a number of local and provincial partners. Project goals include demonstrating that sustainable landscaping is possible in a northern community, determining what northern sustainable landscaping might look like and assessing and changing public opinions in Prince George towards sustainable landscaping. The project is in the second year of a four year run, and early lessons learned will be discussed. Come hear why University Way looks like the way it does and why the public doesn't like "messy" research.
